This Regional Trade Standards Compliance Report (TSCR) for East Asia is the outcome of a strategic partnership and cooperation between UNIDO and IDE-JETRO that started in the spring 2012. The objective of this cooperation is to conduct joint research and to present new analytical approaches that help to gain insights about the challenges that East Asian developing countries face in complying with product quality and safety standards and regulations in agri-food trade towards both regional and global markets. UNIDO and IDE-JETRO intend that this work will lead to a series of such regional reports.

The present report was prepared by an IDE-JETRO team led by Kaoru Nabeshima (IDE-JETRO) and comprising Tsunehiro Otsuki (Osaka University), Aya Suzuki (University of Tokyo), Vu Hoang Nam (Foreign Trade University), Etsuyo Michida (IDE-JETRO), Romio Mori (JETRO), and Nanae Yamada (IDE-JETRO).

At UNIDO, our counterpart team was led by Steffen Kaeser with Thomas Bernhardt providing research and analytical contributions.

Spencer Henson and John Humphrey from the Institute of Development Studies (IDS) in Brighton, United Kingdom, carried out the initial analysis of import rejection data on UNIDO's behalf and prepared the corresponding datasets that were used for this report. They also reviewed and commented earlier drafts.

Dr. Sui Shuyan (Qingdao Agricultural University) provided us with valuable information regarding vegetable production in China while Dr. Nguyen Tri Khiem (An Giang University), Mr. Truong Dinh Hoe (Viet Nam Association of Seafood Exporters and Producers), Dr. Le Xuan Sinh and Dr. Le Nguyen Doan Khoi (Can Tho University), and Dr. Tu Van Binh (CFVG – French-Vietnamese Center for Management Education) shared with us many insights into the pangasius (catfish) and shrimp sectors in Viet Nam.

The following regulatory authorities provided the original datasets on their rejections of agri-food imports: the Australian Government Department of Agriculture, Fisheries and Forestry (DAFF), the European Commission's Directorate General for Health and Consumers (DG SANCO), the Japanese Ministry of Health, Labour and Welfare (MHLW), and the United States Food and Drug Administration (FDA). This generous granting of unprecedented access to their import rejection data laid a key foundation for our analyses and the present report.

Ms. Judy Hartley worked as editor and gave the final touch to this report.

The preparations for the report have been greatly facilitated by the financial support that the Norwegian Agency for Development Cooperation (NORAD) provided to UNIDO for its work on trade standards compliance challenges of developing countries in the framework of the global Trade Standards Compliance Report.
