

VI. IDE ADVANCED SCHOOL (IDEAS)

IDEAS is an educational wing of the IDE. Since its inauguration in 1990, it has offered post-graduate-level training programs in development studies in order to nurture experts who are able to deal with development issues that developing countries face today.

IDEAS offers two parallel programs: a one-year program for Japanese fellows (First semester: September–March; Second semester: March–July) and a six-month overseas fellows program for young government officials from Asian and African countries (October–March). In these programs, overseas and Japanese fellows closely interact and study in the same office.

Training Program for Overseas Fellows (October 2016–March 2017)

This program consists of several clusters of subjects such as “International Trade, Investment, and Finance,” “Development Experience in Japan,” and “Contemporary Issues of Development.” In the academic year 2016-17, 18 government officials and researchers were invited from 12 Asian and 6 African countries. All of them were awarded postgraduate diplomas in Development Studies in March 2017.

Training Program for Japanese Fellows (First Semester: September 2016–March 2017)

In the 27th academic year of this program, 9 Japanese students received training. In addition to the above-mentioned clusters, Japanese fellows studied “Development Theories,” and “Area Studies.” All Japanese fellows graduated with postgraduate diplomas in Development Studies as of March 9, 2017.

All of them proceeded to the second (spring) program which started in mid-March 2017.
