

5. Remarks

The study of international competitiveness of a specific industry is very important, especially in the time of severe depression. Based upon this result, it is possible to create an infrastructure, which may meet mutual interests and generate leverage effect on a well designed collaboration system. Without such kind of study, it should be far away from this goal.

Hopefully, this joint research is a good beginning for the infrastructure mentioned above. It may trigger much more related studies in this domain. Moreover, many talks in the report need to be verified and validated further.